Are you an aspiring environmental leader below 35 years old?

Here's why you should join the Global Mentorship Program as a Mentee!

COALITION WILD

1

Gain invaluable insights and practical advice from a seasoned professional.

Mentoring provides you with the opportunity to learn from and get tailored advice from a senior professional working in your field of interest, as well as access perspectives of the sector that may have been inaccessible to you.

2

Expand your personal and professional network.

Mentoring opens the door to new and valuable connections that may be relevant for your professional (and personal) development; your mentor is only the starting point!

3

Receive assistance, encouragement, and support.

Mentoring provides you with a safe space to share your professional achievements and successes, but also challenges and failures, without the fear of being judged; because mentors have been there before too.

4

Cultivate your interpersonal, communication, and leadership skills, and increase your confidence.

Mentoring is about you developing your own career goals, and being conscious of your agency and power to achieve them, as well as being the leader of your own professional path, but with the guidance and encouragement from a senior professional.

Are you a conservation professional with over 10 years of experience?

Here's why you should join the Global Mentorship Program as a Mentor!

COALITION WILD

1 Improve your communication and interpersonal skills.

Mentoring is about learning to establish positive and honest relationships. Mentoring also allows you to practice and strengthen soft skills, such as empathy or active listening.

2 Expand and enhance your professional network.

Mentoring provides you with an opportunity to grow your network as you support your mentee to expand theirs.

3 Be exposed to different perspectives, experiences, or knowledge

Mentoring provides you with the opportunity to listen to ideas, thoughts, or opinions that may be fundamentally different from yours, which may give you access to new ways of thinking, understanding, and problem-solving, enriching your own work.

4

Opportunity to self-reflect.

Mentoring provides an opportunity to reflect on your achievements and successes, but also on your failures and challenges, and gain deeper insights into your own career and learning paths.
